KAZAKHSTAN: 22nd known 2017 criminal conviction

By Felix Corley, Forum 18

Sunni Imam Abdukhalil Abduzhabbarov was jailed for eight years for inciting religious hatred "with serious consequences", charges he denied. He is the 22nd individual convicted in 2017. Seven others jailed have failed in their appeals. One of two criminal cases against atheist Aleksandr Kharlamov has been closed.

A court in Oral (Uralsk) in West Kazakhstan Region sentenced Sunni Muslim Imam Abdukhalil Abduzhabbarov on 16 August to eight years' imprisonment for sermons and talks he gave between 2004 and 2006. The prosecution claimed he incited religious hatred "with serious consequences", charges he denied.

Abduzhabbarov's conviction brings to 22 the number of individuals known to have been given criminal convictions so far in 2017 to punish the exercise of freedom of religion or belief. Of these, 20 were Sunni Muslims and 2 Jehovah's Witnesses. Of the 22 (all of them men), 20 received prison terms and 2 received restricted freedom sentences, where they live at home under restrictions (see full list below).

Of the 20 convicted Muslims, 15 were accused of membership of the Tabligh Jamaat Muslim missionary group, which was banned by an Astana court in 2013 (see F18News 28 March 2016 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2162>). The other five had all lived in Saudi Arabia for either work or study.

Seven other Sunni Muslims imprisoned earlier in 2017 in Astana and Atyrau for exercising freedom of religion or belief failed in their appeals in August. Astana City Court is due to hear the appeal of another, Satymzhan Azatov, on 12 September (see below).

The second of two criminal cases against atheist writer Aleksandr Kharlamov for his writings on religious themes was closed on 9 August. However, the first - opened in 2013 - is still open (see below).

Abduzhabbarov and the other prisoners of conscience whose sentences have not yet gone into force are likely to be added to the Finance Ministry Financial Monitoring Committee List of individuals "connected with the financing of terrorism or extremism", thus blocking any bank accounts they might have, without any additional due legal process. Three more prisoners of conscience sentenced this year were added in July and August (see F18News 15 August 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2307>).

As individuals are not told when they are added to the List, they normally only find out they have been added when they or relatives attempt to withdraw money from their bank (see F18News 10 June 2016 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2187>).

Abduzhabbarov: Eight year prison term

On 16 August, at the end of a long trial in Oral in West Kazakhstan Region, Judge Ruslan Zhumagulov of Oral City Court found Imam Abdukhalil Abduzhabbarov guilty of inciting religious hatred "with serious consequences" in recordings of his sermons and talks given in 2004 to 2006. The Judge handed down an eight year general regime prison term, according to the local media.

Judge Zhumagulov convicted Imam Abduzhabbarov under Article 164, Part 3 of the old Criminal Code which was in force when the Imam allegedly committed his "crimes". Article 164, Part 3 carried a maximum prison term of 12 years and the possibility of a post-prison ban on activity. That Article is equivalent to Article 174, Part 3 of the current Criminal Code, which came into force in 2015 but which carries an even longer maximum prison term.

Imam Abduzhabbarov originally also faced charges under Criminal Code Article 256, Part 2 ("Propaganda of terrorism"), but these were dropped.

Imam Abduzhabbarov lived and worked in Saudi Arabia for ten years. The National Security Committee (KNB) secret police arrested him, extradited from Saudi Arabia at Kazakhstan's request, as he arrived at Almaty Airport on 18 February. He was then transferred to Oral in West Kazakhstan Region. His wife Dinara and their ten children went to stay with relatives in Shymkent in South Kazakhstan Region (see F18News 21 February 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2259>).

Imam Abduzhabbarov's trial began at Oral City Court on 25 July. He denied any wrongdoing, while the Prosecutor demanded an eight-year prison term. Most of the trial was open, but parts were closed when some of the 27 "witnesses" were questioned.

"Abduzhabbarov, using the nickname Sheikh Khalil, called on Muslims to designate as 'kafirs' [unbelievers] those Muslims who do not pray the namaz and not to buy meat from 'kafirs', and also called for jihad," Prosecutor's Office official Kairat Daukenov claimed in the indictment read out in court.

In his closing address to the court on 15 August, Imam Abduzhabbarov insisted that he had told the truth during the investigation and the trial. "Respected court," he declared, "if I have offended you during the trial I ask you to forgive me. All I wanted to do is defend myself before the law."

Imam Abduzhabbarov complained that he was being asked to pay for a "false and non-objective expert analysis" of his recorded sermons which was used as part of the prosecution case. He also refused to pay for the lawyer the state initially assigned to him as well as for the translator.

Imam Abduzhabbarov spent at least ten days in the Investigation Prison punishment cell in late June for praying and fasting in Ramadan. While in the punishment cell he was given only black bread and water, and had to stand (see F18News 13 July 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2296>).

Atyrau six: Appeals rejected

On 29 August a panel of three judges at Atyrau Regional Court rejected the appeals by six Sunni Muslims against their prison terms handed down on 28 June, the court chancellery told Forum 18 on 29 August. The appeal hearing was open, the official claimed. The men were not in court as they had submitted no request to be present, the official added.

All were convicted on criminal charges - initiated by the KNB secret police - of organising and participating in a "banned religious association", the Muslim missionary movement Tabligh Jamaat.

The six men, arrested in November 2016, were accused under Criminal Code Article 405, Parts 1 and 2.

Article 405, Part 1 punishes "organising the activity of a social or religious association or other organisation after a court decision banning their activity or their liquidation in connection with extremism or terrorism they have carried out" with a fine or up to six years' imprisonment.

Article 405, Part 2 punishes "participation in the activity of a social or religious association or other organisation after a court decision banning their activity or their liquidation in connection with extremism or terrorism they have carried out" with a fine or up to two years' imprisonment.

At the end of their trial at Atyrau City Court No. 2, the Judge handed the longest sentence to the man the prosecution regarded as the organiser, Rollan Arystanbekov. He was given a three-year general regime prison term. The Judge handed two-year general regime prison terms to each of the other five: Zhumabai Nurpeyis; Nurlan Ibrayev; Kanat Shaigozhanov; Nuralim Tyupeyev; and Ermek Akhmetov. All six were also banned from exercising freedom of religion or belief for up to three years after the completion of their prison terms (see F18News 30 June 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2292>).

Seytzhonov: Appeal rejected

On 16 August, Akmola Regional Court rejected the appeal of Sunni Muslim Nariman Seytzhonov against his imprisonment for exercising freedom of religion or belief, according to court records.

A court in Kokshetau sentenced Seytzhonov on 9 June to five years' imprisonment for allegedly "inciting religious hatred" in talks he gave on Islam to pilgrims to Saudi Arabia (see F18News 15 June 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2286>).

Azatov: Appeal due

Astana City Court is due to hear the appeal by Sunni Muslim Satymzhan Azatov in the afternoon of 12 September, according to court records.

On 10 July, Saryarka District Court No. 2 in Astana sentenced Azatov to a four year eight month prison term on charges of inciting religious hatred and terrorism, charges he denied. He was the last of four Sunni Muslims who had studied their faith at a Saudi Arabian university to be jailed in 2017 (see F18News 13 July 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2296>).

Kharlamov: Second criminal case closed, but not first

The second of two criminal cases lodged against atheist writer and human rights defender Aleksandr Kharlamov has been dropped "for absence of a crime". Senior Investigator Denis Simonov confirmed the decision in writing on 9 August, in a document seen by Forum 18.

Kharlamov - who lives in the town of Ridder in East Kazakhstan Region - has been under investigation since 16 November 2016, when a case was launched against him under Criminal Code Article 174, Part 1 ("Incitement of religious hatred").

He was being investigated for his writings on religion and beliefs, this time for a Russian-language book "Samaya genialnaya kniga" (The Most Brilliant Book) he published in 2014. Investigators confiscated 83 copies of it in a 2 February 2017 raid on his home in Ridder (see F18News 17 February 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2258>).

After two "expert analyses" in February 2017 claimed to have found that Kharlamov incited religious hatred, a further analysis was ordered from Almaty's Centre for Judicial Expert Analysis. This concluded on 1 July 2017 that he had not incited religious hatred.

"Kharlamov's actions do not contain the subjective side of the crime," Investigator Simonov wrote, "as he did not deliberately undertake actions directed at inciting social, national, clan, racial, or religious hatred or discord."

The telephone at Ridder Police Investigation Department went unanswered each time Forum 18 called on 29 August.

The first criminal case was opened against Kharlamov on similar charges in January 2013. Prosecutors claim to have found insults to members of various faiths in his writings, claims he denied. As part of that case he spent from March to September 2013 in pre-trial detention, including a month in a psychiatric hospital (see F18News 7 March 2017 <http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article_id=2262>).

"The first criminal case is on the shelf, but it's still running," Kharlamov told Forum 18 from Ridder on 29 August. "We'll now try to get it closed down also and get the travel restrictions overturned. For five years I've been trying to gain justice - something has been achieved with the closure of the second case."

Kharlamov is also seeking the return of his confiscated books and other writings, he told Forum 18.
