RUSSIA: First Jehovah's Witness ban conviction, more trials underway

By Victoria Arnold, Forum 18 (<https://www.forum18.org>)

In the first conviction deriving from the Supreme Court ban on all Jehovah's Witness activity, Aleksandr Solovyov was fined nearly a year's average local wages, although prosecutors had sought to jail him. Six more trials – of 13 defendants – are underway or imminent.

A Jehovah's Witness in the Urals has become the first person to be convicted of "extremist activity" after the Supreme Court's 2017 ban on all Jehovah's Witness activity in Russia. The 49-year-old Aleksandr Solovyov was fined nearly a year's average local wages, although prosecutors had sought to jail him.

The trials of 13 defendants (three women and 10 men) in six more cases have already begun or appear imminent. Prosecutors submitted these cases to court between late May and early July. Full hearings have already begun in two cases (see below).

A Jehovah's Witness detained in a recent raid in Kaluga, Roman Makhnyov, has accused FSB security service officers of torturing him, including by depriving him of food, after he complained about the planting of prohibited literature during their search of his home (see below).

This is the second such allegation of torture of Jehovah's Witnesses by state officials in 2019. In February, seven people in the Khanty-Mansi Autonomous Region reported that they had been tortured during their interrogations. Russia is obliged under international law to arrest and put on criminal trial officials suspected of torture, but instead two of the officials implicated in the torture of were given awards (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2489).

A Muslim imprisoned for studying the works of Said Nursi was also tortured during the nearly two years from 2015 that he spent awaiting trial. Yevgeny Kim was tortured in "the so-called 'press hut', a special room where the necessary testimonies are beaten out [of inmates] by other detainees who are colluding with the prison administration" (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2332). Yet none of the officials responsible have been arrested and put on criminal trial (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2489).

FSB, Police, National Guard Investigative Committee and other officials continue to arrest, interrogate, and detain Jehovah's Witnesses (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2482) for allegedly "organising" or "participating in the activity of a social or religious association or other organisation in relation to which a court has adopted a decision legally in force on liquidation or ban on the activity in connection with the carrying out of extremist activity" (Criminal Code Article 282.2, Parts 1 and 2), as well as for the alleged "financing of extremist activity" (Criminal Code Article 282.3, Part 1).

A total of 212 people are now known to be under criminal investigation in 38 of Russia's 83 federal subjects (not counting Crimea and Sevastopol). Thirty-seven are believed to be in pre-trial detention and 29 under house arrest.

Several of those whose homes have been raided are elderly people, and some are now subject to criminal investigation. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2482) Ten people aged over 70 are now facing prosecution, including 84-year-old Yelena Viktorovna Zayshchuk from Vladivostok. The over-70s are either under travel restrictions or no known restrictions. The oldest person in pre-trial detention is Vilen Shagenovich Avanesov, who is 66 and from Rostov-on-Don. The oldest person under house arrest is Olga Alekseyevna Opaleva, who is 67, from the Primorye Region town of Spassk-Dalny.

Muslims also prosecuted

Muslims who meet to read the works of late theologian Said Nursi are also subject to prosecution, fines, and jailing (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2478) under Criminal Code Article 282.2 ("organisation of" or "participation in the activity of a social or religious association or other organisation in relation to which a court has adopted a decision legally in force on liquidation or ban on the activity in connection with the carrying out of extremist activity").

Two are known to be serving jail sentences – Artur Abdulgamidovich Kaltuyev, who received a three-year term in November 2017 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2339), and Ilgar Vagif-ogly Aliyev, sentenced to eight years in June 2018 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2386).

Four more were recently released:

– Sukhrab Abdulgamidovich Kaltuyev and Ziyavdin Badirsoltanovich Dapayev, jailed with Artur Kaltuyev in November 2017 to three and four years respectively (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2339);

- Komil Olimovich Odilov, who received a two-year term in June 2018 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2391);

- and Yevgeny Lvovich Kim, who was given three years and nine months' imprisonment in June 2017 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2290).

In what appears to be a first, however, Kim was deprived of his Russian citizenship, leaving him stateless (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2478). On 10 April 2019 – the day he completed his prison term – a court fined him and ordered him deported to his country of birth, Uzbekistan. He is currently in a detention centre for foreign nationals in Khabarovsk, but is liable to be expelled from the country at any time.

Two more prosecutions of Nursi readers are known to be in progress. Investigators in Krasnoyarsk have resubmitted their case against Denis Vladimirovich Zhukov to the Prosecutor's Office (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2478) after the regional Investigative Committee carried out more work on the case at the Prosecutors' request. Investigators have now completed this, another Muslim following the case told Forum 18, and issued a fresh indictment on 20 May 2019. It is unknown, however, when the trial may begin.

The FSB security service initially arrested Zhukov on 23 August 2018 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2426) on board the Moscow-Krasnoyarsk train, on which he was returning home after a period spent abroad.

The case against Yevgeny Igoryevich Sukharev in Sharypovo (Krasnoyarsk Region) is still undergoing further investigation after the judge returned it to prosecutors after 23 hearings in court. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2478)

First conviction from Supreme Court ban

Aleksandr Vasilyevich Solovyov (born 13 February 1970) and his wife Anna had just returned from a trip abroad when FSB officers detained them at Perm-2 railway station (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2381) on the evening of 22 May 2018, and took them away in separate cars. Investigators searched the Solovyovs' home overnight on 22/23 May 2018. They seized the deeds to the flat, electronic devices, computer drives, their wifi router, photographs, and their collection of Bibles.

Although Anna Solovyova was soon released without charge, Aleksandr was held in a temporary detention centre for two days. Investigators requested that he be placed in pre-trial detention, but on 24 May 2018, Perm's Sverdlovsk District Court ruled that he should instead be put under house arrest.

On 19 November 2018, Solovyov's house arrest was lifted, but he remained under specific restrictions and was not permitted to leave his flat, use the phone or the internet, send or receive post, or speak to anyone else involved in the case.

On 4 July 2019, Judge Denis Shvetsov of Perm's Ordzhonikidze District Court found Solovyov guilty of "participating in the activity of a social or religious association or other organisation in relation to which a court has adopted a decision legally in force on liquidation or ban on the activity in connection with the carrying out of extremist activity" (Criminal Code Article 282.2, Part 2). The Judge fined him 300,000 Roubles. This represents about 11 months' average wages in Perm for those in formal work.

Prosecutors had sought to have Solovyov jailed for three and a half years. Conviction under Criminal Code Article 282.2, Part 2 can carry a prison term (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2215) of two to six years or a fine of 300,000 to 600,000 Roubles.

On 12 July, Forum 18 tried to contact Regional Deputy Prosecutor Aleksandr Deryshov, who signed the indictment against Solovyov, to ask why the prosecutors had requested a jail term and whether they intended to appeal against the judge's decision to fine him. A spokeswoman in Deryshov's office said that she could not answer questions by telephone.

Forum 18 had already put the same questions in writing to the press service of Perm Regional Prosecutor's Office on 10 July. Forum 18 had received no reply by the end of the Perm working day on 12 July.

Solovyov has consistently denied any guilt and now intends to appeal, Jehovah's Witnesses stated on the day of sentencing.

Solovyov stood accused of continuing to take part in the Perm Jehovah's Witness community, while "being aware of the ban on the activities of this organisation in Russia", according to a 1 July statement on the district court's website. Solovyov was previously the chair of the community.

This previously registered local religious organisation was outlawed and dissolved alongside 395 others by the Supreme Court's 2017 decision to declare the Jehovah's Witness Administrative Centre and all its subdivisions "extremist" (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2297), and ban all Jehovah's Witness activity in Russia.

According to the Jehovah's Witnesses, Solovyov was arrested and charged merely for having conversations about the Bible. These were recorded by "a small group of Perm residents, who in the past professed Jehovah's Witness beliefs", and who had received covert recording equipment from the police.

The court press release states that, according to investigators, Solovyov "deliberately conducted propaganda conversations .. using psychological pressure in the form of persuasion, creating a feeling of guilt, in order to continue illegal extremist activities, [and] encouraged [people] to commit extremist actions aimed at promoting the exclusivity and superiority of the religion of Jehovah's Witnesses, the recruitment of new members .. the destruction of the family, marriage, and family relations, and the distancing [of members] from differently-thinking family environments".

"Betrayal has always been and remains the most vile deed," Solovyov remarked in his closing statement to the court on 27 June. "Those whom I trusted treacherously betrayed me. It was very hard to bear .. but let God be the judge of these people."

The telephone went unanswered in Judge Shvetsov's office on 12 July when Forum 18 called to ask why the court had accepted the evidence of informers.

In response to written questions about why the judge had fined Solovyov, Court chair Veronika Dumushkina told Forum 18 on 12 July that judges "are subject only to the Constitution and federal law", and "consider and resolve criminal cases without external influence. Thus, when sentencing, the court does not refer to the opinion of the prosecution". She added that, as of 12 July, the court had received no prosecution appeal.

Solovyov observed that he had been "a believer for 25 years, and during this time, there has never been an accusation of extremist activities against Jehovah's Witnesses here in Perm .. but on 20 April 2017, they were simply named as such by the decision of the Supreme Court. Of course, this led to the illegal persecution of believers. But at all times it only strengthened and united the servants of God."

"Now, when all over Russia there are more and more criminal cases against Jehovah's Witnesses for allegedly extremist activities, more and more people are coming to the conclusion: you can disagree with the Witnesses' faith and consider them strange, but to put them on a par with real extremists .. This is complete nonsense, as the President of Russia put it."

Oryol jailing and fine after local ban

Solovyov's conviction is the first which derives directly from the Supreme Court's nationwide ban (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2297) on Jehovah's Witness activity.

In February 2019 Dennis Ole Christensen, a Danish citizen, and Sergei Skrynnikov were also found guilty (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2450) under Criminal Code Article 282.2, Part 1 ("Organisation of the activity of a social or religious association or other organisation in relation to which a court has adopted a decision legally in force on liquidation or ban on the activity in connection with the carrying out of extremist activity"), after the Oryol Jehovah's Witness community was banned as an "extremist organisation" in 2016 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2228) by Oryol Regional Court.

Christensen is now serving a six-year prison term (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2479) (likely to total about three years once his time in pre-trial detention is taken into account), while Skrynnikov was fined 350,000 Roubles. Both men appealed unsuccessfully against their convictions (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2480).

13 more defendants on trial

As of 31 May 2019, 200 Jehovah's Witnesses (aged between 19 and 84) (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2482) were known to have been charged or named as suspects for "extremism"-related "crimes". Many have been placed on the Federal Financial Monitoring Service (Rosfinmonitoring) "List of Terrorists and Extremists", (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2215) whose accounts banks are obliged to freeze, apart from small transactions.

Between late May and early July, prosecutors submitted a further six cases to court for trial, involving a total of 13 defendants (three women and 10 men). Full hearings have already begun in two cases.

It is unknown when any of these proceedings will end; Aleksandr Solovyov's trial lasted just under two months from being lodged to the verdict being issued, and had seven full hearings, while Dennis Christensen made 74 appearances over a full year.

Handcuffed to a heating pipe, denied food

On 26 June, FSB security service officers arrested Jehovah's Witness Roman Sergeyevich Makhnyov (born 4 February 1976) in a raid on his home in Kaluga. They also made his 15-year-old daughter go outside and stand barefoot in the street while they searched the family's flat.

Makhnyov said that officers subjected him to inhumane treatment while holding him in Kaluga's FSB headquarters.

Makhnyov said that, during their hours-long search of his home, FSB operatives planted items of banned Jehovah's Witness literature, Jehovah's Witnesses stated on 5 July. When Makhnyov objected, they took him to the local FSB building, where they left him standing handcuffed to a heating pipe all night. Over the next two days of interrogation, he did not receive any food. He only ate again on the morning of 29 June.

The FSB raided a total of six homes in Kaluga on 26 June, including that of an 81-year-old woman. As well as Makhnyov, they arrested Dmitry Yevgenyevich Kuzin (born 10 July 1965). Both men are now in pre-trial detention.

Forum 18 wrote to the Kaluga Region FSB on 10 July, asking whether it will investigate its officers' maltreatment of Makhnyov and whether the officers concerned are still working. Forum received no reply by the end of the working day in Kaluga on 12 July.

Forum 18 also contacted the Kaluga Region Prosecutor's Office, the Kaluga Region Ombudsman for Human Rights, and the Federal Ombudsperson for Human Rights in Moscow, asking whether they had received any report of Makhnyov's maltreatment, whether there would be any investigation and criminal proceedings against the FSB officers involved, and whether, to their knowledge, these officers were still active.

The press service of Kaluga Region Prosecutor's Office responded on 10 July and directed Forum 18 to send its questions to another address. Forum 18 did so the same day, but no reply has been received. Neither human rights ombudsperson has responded as of 12 July. (END)
